

Dear Colleagues,

Since December 2019, the COVID-19 pandemic has spread over the globe drastically. Looking into the impact of COVID-19 through a Gender Lens, the pandemic has impacted men and women both with a high degree of magnitude—it is not only limited to gender inequalities, but to the disruptions of both social and economic norms, values and policies. No one is spared from the psychological and economic ravages of this pandemic. The impact of this pandemic introduces novel change in the society.

In this Special Issue, we invite original research articles and state-of-the-art reviews focused on current knowledge and future perspectives on COVID-19 (including physiological, economic and social). We are also interested in studies and reviews evaluating the positive and negative effects of the various national crisis management approaches, risks and their global impact.

Some of the topics covered under this Special Issue include (but not limited to):

- Psychological and Social impact of COVID-19 pandemic on men and women
- New gender inequalities arising out of the pandemic
- Impact of COVID-19 on working women population
- Risks to women health due to the pandemic
- Difference in impact of COVID-19 pandemic in women when compared to men
- Challenges in managing COVID-19 crisis by women

Manuscript Submission Information

Manuscripts should be submitted online at <http://riverapublications.com/submit-manuscript>.

Manuscripts can be submitted until the deadline of 28 December, 2020. All manuscripts will be peer-reviewed. Accepted manuscripts will be published continuously in the journal (as soon as they are accepted) and will be listed together as Special Issue.

Submitted manuscripts should not have been published previously, nor be under consideration for publication elsewhere (except conference proceedings papers). All manuscripts are thoroughly refereed through a double-blind peer-review. A guide for authors, and other relevant information for submission of manuscripts, is available on the Instructions for Authors page.

Gender and Women's Studies is an international peer-reviewed open access journal published by Rivera Publications. The journal aims to enhance the dissemination of research in an interactive open access manner and to increase author participation by publishing research, following a rigorous peer-review.

We welcome you all to participate and publish